Film/video series for bicyclists set
IOWA CITY — Public Access Television will present "Bike-In Theater," a free summer outdoor film/video series, beginning at sundown Wednesday at 306 Liberty St. The new monthly outdoor film and video screening series involves an evening of adventures, independence, film and video from all over the country.
The kick-off screening will feature "Critical Mass," an independent film tracing the birth and evolution of the Critical Mass bike movement. A short documenta- tion — "Heavy Metal Parking Lot" — also will be shown, which looks at the challenges of parking at a pre-Valleys Parkway concert parking lot circa 1985.
Wheels and car riders are welcome too. Seating is limited, and those who attend may bring their own folding chairs. Parking is available on the street or at the Johnson County Administrative Building, 151 S. Dubuque St.
Among the following weeks' screenings will be a Culture Jamming Video Shorts Program presented by Iowa City Micromedia.

6 professors at UI win Regents Awards for excellence
IOWA CITY — Six University of Iowa faculty members have been honored with the 2005 Regents Award for Faculty Excellence.

The award recognizes faculty members for work representing a significant contribution to excellence in public education.
This year's recipients from the UI are:

• Judith Aihia, professor of German and former dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, is an international authority on early modern German literature. She has been a member of the UI faculty since 1975, regularly teaching courses at all levels.

• Constance Berman, professor of history in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, is one of the world's leading scholars of 18th- and 19th-century art, particularly the career of Jacques-Louis David. She has been a member of the UI faculty since 1987. Her current research examines Romantic Heilen- nism in French art. An elected member of the council of the Collage Art Association, she also has been active in planning and organizing sessions for the American Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies.

• Ronald Lauer, professor emeritus of pediatrics in the College of Public Health, is internationally recognized for his research on coronary artery disease.

• Raymond Crown, George W. Dunton Professor of Pediatrics in the Carver College of Medicine, is an internationally recognized psychiatric gerontologist. His research focuses on genetic linkage studies to search for genes for panic disorder, depression, schizophrenia and alcoholism.

• Kevin Herr, professor of nursing, is a noted expert in pain management in older adults. As the College of Nursing's area chair in adult and gerontological nursing, she leads Iowa's program in gerontological nursing.

The awards recognize excellence in teaching, research and service. The University of Iowa is one of 10 schools in the U.S. that have received the award since 1968.
